Tactical Urbanism: Pop-up Crosswalk

This is a temporary strategy to demonstrate the feasibility and effectiveness of simple pedestrian infrastructure. Using inexpensive materials--a black carpet runner and white paint in this case--we are able to show residents of Leary how a crosswalk could impact their commute or recreational experience. This pop-up crosswalk is proposed for the intersection of Mercer Avenue and Depot Street, considering that these are some of the town's wider and busier streets.

TACTICAL URBANISM: SHARED USE PATH ALONG THE RAILROAD

Tactical urbanism is a short term project for a potentially long term plan design. It emphasizes on street safety and enhance a public space. Tactical urbanism is a more feasible solution to prove a sustainable proposition. Below shoes how tactical urbanism will be used on the site. For example, the proposed shared use path along the railroad, has been outline with darker gravel to allow pedestrians to visualize the space in a temporary form. Moreover, the lanes have been separated with vertical delineation that will allow pedestrians a more confident commute.
